

Managing diabetes safely during sick days

You can stay safe when you are sick

Illness can make it harder to manage your diabetes. You and your diabetes care team can work together to develop a sick day plan before you become ill to make it easier to take care of your diabetes when you are not feeling well. Your team can also let you know when to contact them.

Keep track of your blood sugar

Even if your blood sugar is usually under good control, it can vary when you're sick. So it's important to check your blood sugar often. For example, check it every 6 hours for a mild illness and every 3 to 4 hours for a severe illness. If you use insulin, also check for ketones. Call your diabetes care team if your blood sugar levels are 250 mg/dL or higher for 2 checks, or as directed by your diabetes care team, regardless of your ketone level.

Continue to take your diabetes medicines

- Be sure to take your diabetes medicines when you are sick unless your diabetes care team tells you not to. Do not skip your diabetes pills or insulin even if you feel too sick to eat
- If you use insulin, your diabetes care team may tell you to take extra injections of insulin if your blood sugar is 250 mg/dL or higher. Even if you are vomiting (throwing up) or are unable to eat, continue taking your long-acting (basal) insulin. Ask your diabetes care team about how to adjust your insulin dose when you are sick
- If you take diabetes pills, take your usual dose. If you vomit up the pills or are not eating, call your diabetes care team. Your team may tell you to stop your sulfonylurea medicine (glipizide, glyburide, glimeperide). Ask your diabetes team about how to adjust your diabetes pills when you are sick

Check with your diabetes care team or pharmacist before taking any over-the-counter medicines, like aspirin, cough syrup, or decongestants, to see if they might raise or lower your blood sugar. Choose sugar-free medicines if they are available.

Eating when you are sick

Eating well is important when you are sick, so try to follow your usual meal plan as best you can.

If you are unable to stick to your meal plan but are able to eat some food, choose items from the list below. Each item counts as 1 carbohydrate choice or 15 grams of carbs. Try to eat or drink at least 45 grams of carbs every 3 to 4 hours.

- ½ cup fruit juice (like orange or apple)
- ½ cup regular (not sugar free) soda pop
- ½ cup regular gelatin dessert
- 1 double ice pop
- 1 cup soup
- 1 cup sports drink
- 1 slice toast
- 6 soda crackers

Ask your diabetes care team any questions you may have about eating when you are sick.

Drink up

If you feel too sick to eat solid foods, be sure to drink 6 to 8 ounces of liquids every hour. Switch back and forth between drinks that contain sugar and drinks that do not. For example, for one hour, drink regular fruit juice and soft drinks. The next hour, drink sugar-free soft drinks, tea, or water.

If you can't follow your meal plan, drink fluids that contain salt, like bouillon or clear soup.

When to call your diabetes care team

You can call your diabetes care team any time you have questions or concerns. But you should definitely call if:

- Your blood sugar level is less than 70 mg/dL
- Your blood sugar levels are over 250 mg/dL for more than 2 checks
- You are vomiting or are unable to keep fluids down
- You have a fever (101.5° F) or an illness that lasts more than 24 hours
- You have severe pain in your stomach, have chest pain, or have a hard time breathing
- You have been vomiting or having diarrhea for more than 6 hours
- You have moderate to large amounts of ketones in your urine for more than 6 hours
- You are not sure what to do

My sick day plan

It's a good idea to make a sick day plan with your diabetes care team before you get sick. That way you will know what to do if you get sick.

Do not make any changes to your diabetes care plan without first checking with your diabetes care team. If you have any questions or concerns about what to do when you are sick, be sure to contact your team.
